

ABSTRACT

Methods and apparatus to reference thread-local variables in a runtime system are disclosed. A disclosed method allocates a first node, stores a value in a thread-local variable field in the first node, and identifies a second node in a data structure allocated by a runtime environment while an operating system associated with the runtime environment is in an unlocked condition.